QUESTION: I'm signing up for workshops at Yaa Halla, Y'all 2013. As a newer dancer, how do I pick the workshop that will work for me?

ANSWER: Most professional teachers are accustomed to teaching dancers in classes world-wide who have a variety of dance skills and backgrounds. Most instructors will recommend that newer dancers focus on the basic moves - the more experienced dancers will apply the extra layers on top. Each day of Yaa Halla's workshop groupings include teachers who will specialize that day on different styles, but all will work together to improve your belly dancing. You don't have to remember EVERYTHING. Take notes. In fact, some of what you learn just by being there you will remember later & it will help you in your dancing as you keep getting better.

CONGRATULATIONS to the very first Dance Lab Scholarship recipient, Rosanna Setu, a.k.a. Matriya Dewi!!!

<http://www.matriyadewidance.com>

Born in Fort Worth, Texas, Rosanna Setu, 22, who performs as Matriya Dewi, has a B.A. in Psychology from Drew University (2013). She began learning bellydance at the Isis Academy in 2002 and it became such a passion she danced straight through the ranks of the award winning Angels of Isis and the Isis Professional Performing Company located in Bedford Texas. Winning numerous competitions, her latest award is Rising Star in the Yellow Rose of Texas Competition at Yas Halla Y'all Gathering of the Stars 2012.

It is Matriya's goal to always keep learning and perfecting her knowledge of Middle Eastern dance and to share her love for the art form in performances as well as teach anyone who desires to learn.

Matriya discovered a strong passion for bellydance and middle eastern culture and has performed in many local festivals, parades and competitions including Scarborough Renaissance Faire in Waxahachie Texas and the Dallas St Patrick's Day Parade as well as opening for Club Bellydance (Bellydance Superstars) in Ft. Worth and Dallas. Matriya dances with a precise and delicate blend of ethereal yet sensual quality and credits her mother, dilly Reiki practice and her first Bellydance teacher and mentor, Isis, for her success.

We are very honored and excited to grant Matriya with the very first Dance Lab Scholarship. It is well deserved!

Congratulations to Cindy Dees, who who had her 40th book published in April by HQN, an imprint of Harlequin Publishing. It's a novella featuring a real-life charity called Patches of Light. This charity pays bills and rent for single parents of critically and terminally ill children so they can stay at their child's side and not have to work during their child's time of need.

Harlequin donated $15,000 to this charity last year and asked Cindy to donate her time to write a short novel featuring it. She was delighted to do so, and the end result is her story, LIGHT THIS CANDLE, available now as a free e-book download at Amazon.com.

On April 17th, Harlequin announced that as a result of reading Cindy's book, a donor matched Harlequin's gift to Patches of Light and donated another $15,000 to this worthy cause. USA Today's Happily Ever Blog, which gets over a million views a day, is going to feature Cindy and this story on May 20th!
